Pinacoteca

It is housed in a 1900 building designed to be the headquarters of the Lyceum of Arts and Crafts. It is the oldest art museum in São Paulo, founded in 1905 and passed through an acclaimed renovation conducted by the architect Paulo Mendes da Rocha in the 1990s.

The São Paulo Pinacoteca house is one of the largest and most representative collections of Brazilian art, with almost ten thousand pieces covering mostly the history of Brazilian painting of the 19th and 20th centuries. Also remarkable are the Nemirovsky Collection, with an expressive set of masterpieces of Brazilian modernism and, more recently, the Roger Wright Collection, received in 2015, with iconic masterpieces of the Brazilian contemporary art.

São João and the Housing Movements

Since the 1990's, people organized in housing movements started to occupy empty buildings in the center of the city. They are low-income families that, specially nowadays, cannot pay rent and struggle for dignified housing through public policy. The São João occupation is one occupation organized by FLM (Frente de Luta por Moradia), one of the most important movements of the city.
